Prior to margin trading, careful consideration of investment objectives, level of experience, and risk tolerance is essential. CFDs present greater risks compared to on-exchange products, as market liquidity is not guaranteed, and liquidating an existing position may be more challenging. Prices and other conditions are determined by us, adhering to our obligation to provide best execution, as outlined in our order execution policy. We commit to act reasonably and in alignment with the applicable Terms and Conditions. The characteristics of our CFDs may differ significantly from the actual underlying market or instrument. In the event of unfavorable market movements, there is a potential for a total loss exceeding the funds invested in a specific position, and customers bear full responsibility for all losses in their accounts.
